

Q1)PresentationMarks (9.75/10)

- Feedback :Your document is nicely presented. You have adhered to the structure required, providing relevant contents in the vast majority of the parts. Under the purpose and scope, you did well. Your identification of the audience for the document is good. You missed to mention in the introduction that this document focuses on the SFXFridge system for details on the SFXapp is another document. Also, you could mention some of the fridge features (food inventory, internet shopping, maintenance technicians). You have a good glossary. User Req. section you explain about the two subsystems and how they exchange information. System Req. section you did well. System Evolution section is good. You have good appendices and your document is professionally presented and formatted.

Q2) User Req marks (9/15)

- Feedback :Good use of the Volere template. Good clear functional requirement. Description is consistent with the priority and customer satisfaction. Your fit criterion cannot measure. How many times and items the user should scan to test this functionality. Your traceability information is good. Your satisfaction/dissatisfaction are fine. Your Non-functional requirement is ok, but you could add more information about it. Also, your fit criterion need to be measure. Please see model answer to clarification.

Q3) Use Case marks (25/15)

- Feedback :Your UC diagram shows a good understanding of most of the related concepts and you have provided a clear summary of each of your UCs. However, there are some issues. You did not specify what is include or extend. Some use cases are missing: you did not generate all types of reports, track spoiled food and open door. In conclusion you have done well, still lots of room for improvement. Check the model answers for more details.
